

Measuring the individual as institution.

An independent research program, toward a flagship report at Cannes Lions 2027. For internal circulation.

The shift, and the gap

Work is moving from “get hired for a role” to “the role gets built around you.” Creators and professionals are becoming institutions in themselves — their own audience, capability, rights, and durable value. Reach and activity are measured everywhere. Ownership and durability, the part that actually makes someone an institution, are measured almost nowhere. Institutions of One measures them, in public.

What exists today

Two constructed instruments — the Ownership Index (for creators) and the Portfolio Professional (for professionals) — each behaviourally anchored, versioned, and evidence-tiered. A live public platform and an evidence-backed map, the Observatory. A consent-first research dataset that grows with every assessment. Disclosed tool partners. An honest, versioned methodology.

Ways to partner (figures set in conversation)

Research partner. Events, media, and platforms with a creator or professional audience. You bring distribution and an official designation; you receive a proprietary data cut built for you, the instruments for your audience, and a co-branded finding with your name on the research. A value-exchange, not a media buy.

Chapter / data sponsor. Own a section or data cut of the 2027 report; named association with a specific, citable finding.

Title sponsor. Lead support for the report and its Cannes launch; top billing and first association with the category as it forms.

Advertiser / activation. Sponsor a defined activation or series; reach an engaged audience through an experience only this program can offer.

What money can never touch. Every partnership is disclosed publicly. Sponsors fund the work; they never touch the scores, the items, or the findings. Independence is the asset — for the research and for the partner.

Why now

The framework and both instruments are built; live measurement is underway. A founding-partner relationship is most valuable before the report lands — the earliest partners help shape, and are most associated with, the category as it forms.

RN Collins — independent researcher, writer, and builder. M.S. neuroscience (Boston University School of Medicine); J.D. candidate (Northeastern Law); five peer-reviewed publications.
collins.ra@northeastern.edu · linkedin.com/in/rn-collins · ownership-platform.vercel.app